Studenttreasures Celebrates 17 Million Published Student-Authored Books

Six classrooms at Sixes Elementary were recognized for publishing their books with Studenttreasures and advanced to the National Book Challenge for a chance to win $5,000.

TOPEKA, Kan., April 26, 2024 — Studenttreasures Publishing celebrated its 17 millionth published author by recognizing six second-grade classes at Sixes Elementary in Canton, Georgia, for writing, illustrating and publishing their own books. In addition to celebrating the published second-grade authors, one class was identified as the publisher of the 17 millionth student-authored book. It was announced that Sage Stulak’s class was that publisher with a book titled, "Our Amazing Fable-Tales." As part of the celebration, the school was awarded a $1,000 grant.

“We couldn't be prouder of our second-grade students for their incredible achievement in publishing fables and fairy tales! Celebrating the publication of the 17 millionth book with Studenttreasures is truly an honor, and we greatly appreciate their dedication to young authors,” Dr. Ashley Kennerly, Principal of Sixes Elementary, said. “This milestone not only showcases their creativity and talent but also promotes the invaluable skill of student authorship in a fun and engaging way. A heartfelt thank you to Studenttreasures for their generous support in nurturing writing among our Sixes Stars. Together, we're inspiring a new generation of storytellers!”

“We’re celebrating these six classes and their teachers for achieving something most people only dream of – publishing their own books,” Chad Zimmerman, President and CEO of Studenttreasures Publishing, said. “We’re also celebrating publishing 17 million student-authored books and recognize Ms. Stulak’s class for helping us reach this meaningful milestone. We also wish the best of luck to the Sixes Elementary students on their entry into the National Book Challenge for a chance to win a $5,000 grant for their school!”
